OPENING WAS A SUCCESS.

Judging from the number which attended Corrigan's Sisters millinery opening last evening the affair was a decided success. The display was prettily arranged and all evening the store was filled. Expressions of delight at the elaborate array were heard on all sides. A special opening for the display of children's hats will be held Thursday evening, October 4.

KANE BROS. STORE OPENING

In this week's issue of the Fayette City Journal the following article appeared regarding Kane Bros. who have just opened a clothing store in the new First National bank building:

"P. W. Kane & Brother, the hustling clothing merchants of this place will open their new store in Monessen Saturday. The store is well equipped and up-to-date in every manner and "Pat" and Henry will be pleased to receive any of their friends, new and old, that call. The store is located on Donner avenue, next door to the postoffice and is considered to be a very good location.

Messrs. Kane are young men that have worked their way up and deserve all the favors that come their way, and will appreciate them by giving the best possible value for the money.

Their ads. appear in both of the Monessen papers as well as the Journal which shows that they know the value of printers ink when applied to advertising.

ANOTHER FEATURE ADDED TO NEWSBOY'S CONTEST

Five Leaders in Weekly Sales Will Be Taken to Skating Rink Next Saturday Afternoon.

Today the newsboys of the Independent are exceptionally busy on account of it being the last day prior to the start of the prize subscription contest. All names of subscribers handed in this evening will be placed to the credit of the boys and will be recognized when the contest starts on Monday and this has given them a good opportunity to get a good subscription list for a starter.

In order to give the boys recognition for their street sales we have decided to take the five boys who sell the most papers in six evenings to the skating rink and give them an afternoon's enjoyment on the rollers, or if they prefer, they may go to a show. Either of the places of amusement will be at the disposal of the winners.

Every boy on the Independent's staff is now down to business and is making a canvass among his friends to obtain subscribers for the paper. We are doing our best to have the boys rewarded for their efforts and we are proud to say the public in general appreciates our efforts. Every day there are names sent to the office to be credited to certain boys. Let the good work be continued.

Card of Thanks

We desire through the columns of the Independent to thank our neighbors and friends who were so kind to us during our sad bereavement in the loss of our daughter, Jessie. We choose this method of showing our appreciation for the assistance rendered us, also for the many floral offerings. We wish to thank the members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, the Elks, the Lady Maccabees, Bar Tenders union and Hotel Men's association for the lovely floral offerings.

A Big Household.

The missionary was at once pale and yellow—pale, he explained, from an avoidance of the deadly Indian sun, yellow from a disordered liver.

"Nevertheless," he said gayly, "India for me first, last and all the time. On the money you and your family are paying at this hotel do you know how you would live in India?"

He lighted a cigarette and resumed: "You would live in a beautiful house set in a lovely garden, with a list of servants that would include a khansamah, or butler; a khitmutgar, or table servant; a chokra, or page; a mussalchee, or light bearer; a mug, or cook; two syces, or grooms; a bheestee, or water carrier; a sallah, or house cooly; a molli, or gardener; a dhobie, or washerman; a durzee, or private tailor; an ayah, or nurse; a sirdah, or valet; a furrash bearer, or lamp man; three punkah coolies to work the fans; a durman, or lodge porter; a jamadar, or footman, and several chaprassies, or messengers.

Japanese Art Symbols.

If a Japanese artist wishes to describe in color and design the anticipation of happiness he draws a picture which is a combination of an April evening, a moon, a nightingale and a plum tree or two. Victory is symbolized by the iris, grace and quietness by the willow tree and the swallow for symbols. Patriotism is sometimes indicated by a spray of cherry blossoms. The almond flower is the flower of spring and symbolizes beauty. The dragon twines and writhes an artistic course through all Japanese art, root and branch. His name is Tatsu, and when you see him pictured as fighting with a tiger it is the symbol of religion fighting against power. A dragon floating about in the clouds means success in life. Tori, the cock, perched upon a drum, signifies good government. Both the Greeks and the Japs use the butterfly to symbolize immortality.

Eskimo Throwing Sticks.

A "throwing stick," "throwing board" or "spear thrower," as it is sometimes called, is a contrivance for casting a javelin or harpoon, which is employed by various savage races, such as the Australians, some South American tribes and especially by the Eskimos, among whom its use is almost universal. Roughly speaking, it is a narrow grooved board a foot or so long, with one end cut into a handle and the other provided with a stud or spur for the butt of the spear to rest against. It is used thus: Grasping the handle as he would a sword, the man fits the shaft of the spear into the groove, with the butt resting against the stud, steadying the spear with the finger. Then, extending his arm and bending back his hand till the spear lies horizontal, he aims at the mark and propels the weapon by a quick forward jerk of the stick. In this way I have seen Eskimo boys casting their forked javelins at wounded waterfowl.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative Cures All Distressing Stomach Troubles Through the Inside Nerves.

As you value your health and happiness don't neglect to care for the slightest stomach pain—don't let it go. At the first sign of distress use Dr Shoop's Restorative and end all these troubles. These aches are signals—they are symptoms of coming disease—is it wise to ignore them? You who never eat a hearty meal without a sense of fullness followed by a period of lassitude or drowsiness—beware. Neglect these conditions and you surely invite distressing indigestion—you'll become a sallow, miserable dyspeptic. Do you experience any of these symptoms?—distress after eating, return ing of food to mouth, gnawing at pit of stomach, rumbling of gas, belching of wind, loss of appetite, heartburn, headache, dizziness? If you suffer in any of these ways, your duty is clear—there is but one course open to you—strengthen the inside nerves—these special stomach nerves. Shake off forever this evidence of disease. Put the digestive nerves in condition to act as nature intended they should. Don't drug, don't force—just give the inside nerves natural force. Gentle tonic nature's help. Dr Shoop's Restorative (Tablets or Liquid) should be taken to do this. It is the only prescription which builds up or even attempts to restore the inside stomach nerves. Sold by

HAPPY WOMEN.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
To find relief and cure?
No reason why any reader
Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. Almira A. Jackson, of East Front St., Traverse City, Mich., says: "For twenty years I was doctoring for kidney and liver trouble but without benefit. Just before I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was almost paralyzed. I could hardly stand on my feet because of the numbness and lack of circulation. Had a knife been thrust into my kidneys the pain could not have been more intense. My sleep was disturbed by visions of distorted figures. The kidney secretions were annoyingly irregular, and I was tortured with thirst and always bloated. I used seven boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. The bloating subsided until I weighed 100 pounds less, could sleep like a child and was relieved of the pain and the irregularity of the kidney action. My circulation is good and I feel better in every way."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Jackson will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists: price, 50 cents per box.

A Detective's Story

[Original.]

"We never know how a case is going to turn out," said the detective. "Sometimes we waste sympathy on people, and sometimes we don't give them sympathy that they deserve.

"Some years ago a young fellow (we will call him Lightbody—Lightbody's a good name for the sort of fellow he was) went to New York and got a position in a banking house. They said he was smart as chain lightning. At any rate, he climbed right up in the estimation of his employers, and soon he became their right hand man. But while they thought he was attending exclusively to their interests he was attending exclusively to his own. He was in everything where money is to be made or lost, though where he got the capital to work with nobody knew.

"The fellow bit off more than he could chew and to save himself used his employers' funds, and about the same time Lightbody disappeared. A year or two after his disappearance it was reported to his former employers that he was living in a Central American state, and I was employed to go down and bring him back. The job was a delicate one, since there was no extradition treaty with the state in which he had made his home.

"Furnished with all the evidence I would need, including photographs, I sailed for Central America and on reaching my destination found that Mr. Lightbody was at the capital and a prime favorite with the government. He had got some valuable concessions that were likely to make him rich. He had won the heart of the daughter of one of the prominent citizens, who was considered a very lovely girl.

"Of course I had letters to first class people in my pocket, for I knew before starting that my man was cutting a heavy swath socially. I waited for some important function to let me in on an equality with the man I was after. A ball was given to which I was invited, and, getting myself up in the latest style of evening dress, I joined the throng. Of course Lightbody was there, and so was his girl. During the early part of the entertainment he was in such demand and was so devoted to his fiancee that I didn't even make his acquaintance. I saw them together frequently, and it was plainly a case of genuine love on both sides. I pitied the girl; but, as I have said, I had made up my mind to attend to business and let sentiment alone.

"Shortly before the ball broke up I joined a party of men in the supper room who were drinking champagne and smoking cigarettes. Lightbody was among the number. I made an effort to ingratiate myself into his favor and had some success. But he seemed anxious to get away, and I saw him soon after dancing with his girl. When the affair broke up I stood on the veranda, keeping my carriage standing, while I waited for Lightbody. Presently he came out with his fiancee and her mother, put them in a carriage, and they were driven away. Lightbody returned to the house, went inside, got his hat, came out, lighted a cigarette and was going down the steps when I stopped him and asked which way he was going. When he replied I told him that I was going the same way and would be happy to take him in my carriage. He accepted the invitation, and we got in and were driven away. We had not gone far before I said to him:

"'Mr. ——,' calling him by his real name, 'how would you like to go to New York on the steamer with me?'

"He divined the situation at once. He made no reply for some time, then said:

"'There's no extradition treaty between the United States and this country, and I could put you to some trouble, but I'll go with you provided you won't give me away here and give me time to arrange my affairs. What do you say to that?'

"'All I want is you. I don't want to peach on you. The steamer sails tomorrow night. Can you be ready?'

"'Yes.'

"The next day the fellow gave out that he had been called to New York on some important financial business and said goodby to his girl promising to be back soon. The next evening we sailed, arriving in New York in due time.

"I wondered how his girl would feel when she heard that he was an embezzler and had gone from her to state's prison. And here's where my refraining from telling her comes in. The affair for which he was wanted involved several people besides himself, and he was the only one not to blame. The others were his friends and had families. He drew suspicion away from them by flight. On his return he presented his schemes in Central America to the losers and agreed to take them in. This he did without informing on the real culprits. The losers, finding that far more money was to be made from his concessions than they had lost, accepted his terms, gave him funds, and in two weeks he was back on the isthmus more of a high financial flier than before. His concessions turned out to be very valuable and made him and his associates rich. He married the girl and became a permanent resident of Central America. There he is greatly respected, but in the United States he is still regarded an embezzler. He never threw the blame where it belonged.

"How do I know that he was innocent? Well, that would involve a breach of trust on my part. My profession never admits of telling secrets."

Captain Christo

[Copyright, 1906, by C. M. Sutcliffe]

About eighteen months before the United States declared war on Spain in behalf of Cuba the Spanish captain, Christo, arrived in Havana. He was a man with very much of a past. He had fought three duels; he had been the warden of a prison and had flogged several convicts to death; he had been chief of police at Madrid and was known as cruel and relentless.

General Weyler wanted a man after his own heart. He wanted a man who would lead a small command against the Cubans in rebellion and kill every man as fast as come to. He so arranged matters that Christo came out as a captain and was given a hundred men. They were known as "Christo's Devils" and were more dreaded than five times their number of regular troops. When they captured a bunch of prisoners they spared few lives.

On one occasion, after twelve Cubans had held a sugar house against ninety Devils for two days and were still having the best of it, Captain Christo came forward under a flag of truce and asked for their surrender. They might march out with their guns and their flag, and, on the sacred honor of a Spanish soldier and a gentleman, they should not be fired on. The Cubans distrusted him, but they had ammunition for only one more day, and it was finally determined to accept the terms. Christo had posted his men in ambush, and when the Cubans appeared all but one were shot down.

Three or four leaders like Christo, working into the jungle with small forces at their backs, might have finally wrecked the Cuban cause, but there were no others to follow in his bloody footsteps. The rebels dreaded him and thirsted for revenge. After many plans to capture him had been laid and failed an American soldier of fortune serving with the Cubans as a sergeant came forward. This man, who was about thirty years old, was known only as Hines. He gave no information about himself, and as he was a fighter no questions were asked. He asked for four tried men to go with him, and he took men whose courage he had seen tested. During an afternoon they marched nine miles to the house of a peon friendly to the cause. He informed them that Christo's Devils were only a mile away on an abandoned sugar plantation. He had visited them that morning to carry in provisions. In marching through the jungles three or four days before most of the men had been poisoned by a vine like our ivy. The peon said that fully thirty men were blinded with poison, and of the other sixty many could not handle their muskets for their swollen hands.

The native had understood that Captain Christo was to ride back to the Spanish lines next day, but this might or might not be so. He had seen the captain and had been questioned by him, and he reported the officer in sullen spirits. The rebels passed the plantation that night and went into ambush on the road beyond. It was taking a chance. If Spanish troops came up they would be cut off; if Captain Christo rode for the lines they hoped to capture him. They were in luck. At 9 o'clock next morning the captain, attended only by an orderly, made his appearance. His horse was shot from under him and his orderly killed, and the next minute the leader of the Devils was a prisoner.

Hines had sketched out a plan to be followed in case of capture, and now it was put into effect. Not one of the five spoke to the captain. He first tried bluff and threats. He would, he declared, be recaptured within the hour, and he promised that every one of the five should roast before a slow fire. With his arms tied behind his back and a guard on each side of him he was bustled into the jungle and not a word uttered in reply. After half an hour passed the captain resorted to promises. If they would let him go he would pay each one a hundred dollars. He finally raised his offer to a thousand dollars apiece. On top of that he would agree to resign his commission and go home to Spain. Still no reply. Coming to the cabin of a man who could be trusted, he was sent to the Cuban camp after a re-enforcement of thirty men. While waiting for the arrival of this force the captain was tied and gagged and thrust down cellar. When the thirty men had come up Hines led the way to the sugar plantation and fell upon the Devils and almost made a wipe-out. Only ten escaped.

When Captain Christo had been safely landed in the Cuban camp he was informed of the slaughter. He could not doubt it, for the men around him were laden with the spoils of the Spanish camp. He was also told that he must die within an hour. They would not torture him, but he should die by the rope. The man grew white as death and trembled like one with a chill. He tried to bluster, but it was a lamentable failure. He had seen dozens of captured Cubans stand boldly up to be shot to death by his order, but the presence of the grim specter unnerved him. He cried like a child. He stated that he had $30,000 in bank at Havana, and every cent should go to the Cuban cause if his life was spared. He offered to lead a Spanish force into a trap. He even offered to turn rebel and fight for the cause.

When the rope was prepared he screamed and fought and groveled and licked the feet of the men in charge of the execution. His cowardice was so disgusting that many turned away. Christo had been a bully and braggart and a leader all his life and had made a false reputation. He was in terror of death and died whining like a dog.

Knew From Experience.

"I say," said a friend the other day, "you are an old hand at it. I have only just got married, and don't understand much about the business, but has a married man any rights left when he once assumes the hymeneal responsibilities?"

"Rights? Yes, lots! He's a right to pay all the bills, to"—

"Stop. I mean this. Let me give you an instance. Every box and drawer and portmanteau and, in fact, every available receptacle of every description is stuffed full of my wife's property and when I want to put away a few cuffs and collars"—

"Hold hard! I know what you mean. Listen, young man. If your bedroom were 200 yards long and lined from the floor to the ceiling with drawers and you wanted a place to stow away a couple of collars, you couldn't find a nook that wasn't full of hairpins, tufts of frizzes, pads, scent boxes, old gloves, powder puffs, rings and things. So just accept the inevitable. Wrap your personal property in an old newspaper or some brown paper and hide the parcel under the bed."

The inquirer smiled loudly and ironically and passed on a wiser if not a better man.

HOW TO SAVE $100.

Buy your pianos at Frederick's. You will save $100 on the purchase of a piano, the same instrument that will cost you $100 more if you buy from another dealer. Why? W. F. Frederick operates over sixty stores and agencies. The largest piano concern between New York and Chicago. Buys the annual output of many instruments he is selling, and retails to the people at factory prices. We do not deal in cheap pianos. We are asking you the same price for a good piano, as you will pay for a worthless one, and think you are getting a bargain. Where is the guarantee? We guarantee all our instruments to be first-class, and stand by every word we say.

"Think a minute." Come to our store and we will help you make the selection of a piano that will be an ornament in your home. We will make the price satisfactory. Your old instrument taken in exchange.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bed wetting. If it did there would be few children that would do it. There is a constitutional cause for this. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 19, Notre Dame, Ind., will send her home treatment to any mother. She asks no money. Write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child. The chances are it can't help it.
